

Food Service Evaluations:

During unannounced routine operational inspections of local retail food establishments we document the number of Contributing Factors found. Contributing Factors are items or situations that have been identified by the Centers for Disease Control as the leading causes for foodborne illness in the United States. Contributing Factors are:

- Food from unsafe source/unwholesome. (visible spoilage or defective packaging noted, inability to identify source, home prepared/canned foods on premises)
- Inadequate cooking or reheating. (product temperatures consistent with inadequate cooking or reheating, malfunctioning heating units)
- Improper cooling or refrigeration. (malfunctioning cooling units, product temperatures above 41 degrees, product temperatures consistent with improper cooling procedures)
- Cross contamination. (raw meat stored improperly, cutting board/utensils not properly sanitized)
- Poor personal hygiene/poor food handling practices. (lack of proper handwash skills/hand contact with ready to eat foods, smoking, eating, or drinking in food prep area)

It is our goal that each retail food establishment in Whiteside County reduces these Contributing Factors to 0.

Inspection Frequency:

Routine operational inspection frequency is based largely on the number of food handling operations (or lack thereof) in an establishment and are categorized as follows:

- Category 1 - Category 1 facilities are inspected three (3) times per year. Presents a relatively high risk of causing foodborne illness based on the large number of food handling operations typically implicated in food borne outbreaks and/or the type of population served by a facility.
- Category 2 - Category 2 facilities are inspected two (2) times per year. Presents a medium relative risk of causing a foodborne illness based upon limited food handling operations typically implicated in foodborne outbreaks.
- Category 3 - Category 3 facilities are inspected one (1) time per year. Presents a low relative risk of causing foodborne illness based upon few or no food handling operations typically implicated in foodborne outbreaks.

Retail Food Establishment Listings:

Establishments are listed alphabetically. The number located to the right of the Establishment's name is the number of contributing factors observed during the most recent inspection. Note: This information is not intended to be used as a guide to the "best or "worst" restaurants, but for informational purposes only. Please be aware that even the better managed facilities will occasionally have a contributing factor violation(s) due to equipment malfunction, improperly trained personnel, etc... Finally, identified Contributing Factors are corrected at the time of inspection or within 24 hours of the noted inspection date.
